FACEBOOK RANTS ON MOSQUE PLAN

THE uproar over plans to build a mosque in Harlow took a sinister turn this week when sickening comments were posted on a popular internet social networking site.

Messages on Facebook are being monitored by police for possibly inciting racial or religious hatred. They were posted in the same week that angry residents held a meeting to oppose the scheme.

The Facebook group was originally set up by member Danny Lane as a discussion group but it has attracted people with extreme views on Muslim activity in the town regarding the plans to extend the Harlow Islamic Community Centre in the former Kingsmoor Recreation Centre in Paringdon Road.

Although the majority of contributors to the group are not opposed to the plans, the discussion board includes envisaged threats of vandalism on the proposed building and dozens of racist and anti-Muslim remarks.

Speaking to the Star yesterday, West Essex divisional superintendent Tim Stokes warned people to Charity's new project off to rocking start

A NIGHT of rock music helped to raise both the profile of and funds for a new volunteering service aimed at young people in Harlow.

The charity Rainer Essex organised the evening at The Square to launch of its new Youth Volunteering Service initiative.

It was thought to be the best way of reaching the charity's target audience of 16-25 year-olds and was organised by some of the young people already involved with the project.

Rainer, which supports vulnerable young people in a variety of different ways, has launched the Youth Volunteering Scheme with support from national volunteering charity V. Its official aim is to "ignite the enthusiasm" of Essex youngsters and invigorate local communities.

It is hoped that the projects undertaken by those who get involved will range from organising charity concerts, like the one held at The Square on Thursday, to environmental projects and building children's facilities.

Rainer spokeswoman Keri Green said: "We are very excited about this project which will give our young people the opportunity to develop new skills and will build understanding of how they can contribute locally."

"This project is all about empowering young people in Essex to come up with their own innovative and creative ideas for enriching their local communities, and from what I have seen so far there are going to be some very exciting projects under way in the next few months."

Anyone aged 16-25 who wishes to get involved with the Youth Volunteering Scheme can find out more by calling (01279) 408370 or at www.raineronline.org.

Young at heart

HARLOW Active Retired is marking its 25th anniversary this month with a recruitment drive.

The group for the old in age but young at heart has recently won funding from Harlow Council and the National Lottery which will enable it to replace equipment and expand its activities.

Chairman Bob Worthington said: "Anyone who is over 50 and would like to stop watching daytime TV is welcome to join us. You do not need

Golfers raise hole lot of money in memory of Jim

MORE than 60 participants got into the swing of things at a golf day in aid of the British Lung Foundation.

The event at Harlow's Cannons Brook Golf Club on Friday, held in memory of Harlow resident Jim Bussey, was followed by a presentation evening at the Three Horseshoes pub in Three Horseshoes Lane.

Altogether a total of £2,200 was raised for the charity. Mr Bussey's sister-in-law Susan Verguson, who helped organise the event, said: "The holes were all sponsored by family, friends and local firm Starc Engineering. "We also had an ongoing raffle in the evening to raise even more money."

Hospice Hawks

THE coffers of St Clare Hospice were boosted after Harlow Town FC's last game of the season thanks to some personal donations from players.

Hawks players put their hands in their pockets at last Saturday's clash with East Thurrock United in return for manager Ryan Kirby giving them the choice of kit to wear.

Supporters also chipped in to support the hospice when collection tins were sent round at half time. More than £100 was raised.

Hawks vice-chairman Simon Morgan said: "Every player has made a donation to this worthy cause, which is a credit to Harlow Town Football Club."

Moonwalk trio

THREE community cancer nurses who look after patients in Harlow are hoping to raise a handsome sum by taking part in an overnight marathon.

Christine White, Erica Whitten and Irene O'Dell, who all work for Macmillan Cancer Support, will join 15,000 other people on the 26.2-mile Playtex Moonwalk in London next Saturday.

They will all be raising money for breast cancer research.

To sponsor the trio, send a donation to Macmillan Cancer Support, Galen House, Harlow (cheques made payable to Playtex London Moonwalk) or visit the website at www.bmycharity.com/travellingoptimists.

Helping carers

A THREE-mile sponsored walk in aid of the Epping and Harlow branch of Crossroads Caring For Carers, takes place on Saturday.

Anyone wishing to take part or to sponsor the event, which is being held in Waltham Abbey, should call Marion Clarke on (01992) 572557.

IN CONTROL: Harlow's jubilant Conservative councillors are pictured outside the Civic Centre following their success in last Thursday's local elections

Labour routed as Tories take over

THE Conservatives have swept to power in Harlow for the first time in the town's history, promising a new culture of openness and greater democracy.

In a disastrous election night for Labour, which has dominated the authority for more than 60 years, the party was beaten into third place as the town's political map was redrawn in blue.

Of the 10 seats contested on Thursday, the

By BEN WILKINSON
Chief Reporter
wilkinsonb@hertsessexnews.co.uk

Conservatives took eight and the Liberal Democrats two. The result leaves the overall composition of the council with 18 Conservatives against eight Lib Dems and just six Labour councillors – a gain of five seats for the Tories.

Not only does the result oust the Labour/Lib Dem coalition which has run the council since 2004, but Labour – which controlled the authority with an iron grip until 2000 – has been cut down to its smallest representation ever.

Among the Labour casualties was Mike Danvers, who had been seen as a possible successor to retiring group leader Tony Durcan, and Sean Folan. Also losing to a Conservative was Liberal Democrat Ian Jackson, who left the count vowing to give up politics.

New Tory faces include Russell Perrin, David Kirton, Shona Johnson, Mark Gough and 22-year-old Joel Charles, while Simon Carter, Muriel Jolles and Eddie Johnson kept their seats with increased majorities.

Taking Bush Fair and Mark Hall for the Liberal Democrats were Manny Doku and Nick Macy, respectively.

In a rousing speech to colleagues, Tory group leader Andrew Johnson recalled 1998, when he was first elected and served as Harlow's only Conservative member.

"Ten years of hard work – your hard work – has led to this complete turnaround," he said. "We won because we fought on the right issue – change for the town."

"Harlow is indicative of the national situation. We've won here, we're going to form the next Government, (Tory prospective Parliamentary candidate) Robert Halfon is going to be our next MP and Bill Rammell will soon be finding out what it's like to be on the dole."

Meanwhile, Mr Durcan said he was "shocked, surprised and disappointed" at the extent of Labour's thrashing.

"We knew we were going to be in for a difficult night but this is very disappointing," he said. "We campaigned on important local issues, like keeping weekly bin collections, like building new council houses, but clearly our message didn't get across strongly enough."

Lib Dem leader Chris Millington said he was disappointed to lose Mr Jackson and the seat of retiring Liberal Su Lawton, but delighted to have taken two others in their place.

"It's a mixed picture for us, but clearly a disastrous result for Labour," he said. "We shall work constructively with the new Conservative administration but also vigorously hold them to account."

Leader works out his inherited difficulties

DESPITE his party's landslide election victory, Conservative Andrew Johnson will not officially become leader of Harlow Council for another two weeks.

But speaking to the Star this week, Mr Johnson said that although the delay is frustrating, it has not stopped him busily planning for the next few months as the town's first-ever Tory council leader.

While promising to stick rigidly to the party's local manifesto, using its pledges as "a roadmap" for the next two years, he warned that residents may not see immediate action and regards his first task, following six months of financial turmoil, as properly assessing the council's situation.

"Before we do anything else, we've got to work out how much of a problem we're inheriting and get to grips with it," he said.

"Then we need to be more open and transparent to ensure there is never a repeat of the £1.8m budget black hole which we suddenly discovered last year.

"Having said that, there are things in our manifesto we can achieve quickly. Reinstating the community partnerships and establishing a post of youth chairman will be immediate priorities, as will taking a lead on encouraging local businesses and organisations to reduce their carbon footprint."

Design students step up to help

MEET some of the Harlow College students whose work is helping to publicise one of this summer's biggest fundraising events in the town.

St Clare Hospice, organisers of next month's Midnight Walk, approached the college with a request to design an eye-catching logo and accompanying artwork for the event.

Graphic design students from both year groups were given a brief and then worked in groups on the project. The best eight ideas were taken forward for development and the chosen concept was then developed.

The 'walking feet' design was the work of first year student Chelsie Keighley (17) while second year student Nichola Miles (18) thought up the 'Midnight Walk' logo. Both now feature on the official registration form as well as posters, leaflets and in the Harlow Star.

"We are so proud of the Midnight walk brand and printed material that Nichola and Chelsie have created," said hospice head of communications Giles Wright. "It is instantly recognisable as belonging to the hospice and the town. It is creative, fun and eye-catching, exactly what we looking for!"

"We are so grateful to the team at Harlow College for their support providing creative services worth thousands of pounds. I hope that the experience will be useful for the students and I am sure they will all become designers of the future."

The Midnight Walk will be the hospice's biggest single fundraising event of the year. The running costs of the hospice, which cares for people with life-threatening illnesses throughout West Essex and East Herts, and provides support for their families, is currently £2m a year yet it receives only 30 per cent of its funding from the NHS.

Hundreds of willing walkers have already returned their completed registration forms and hundreds more have requested registration packs.

The response so far has been amazing but we still want more. If the number taking part exceeds 2,200 the Midnight Walk, which is being supported by the Star, our sister paper the Bishop's Stortford Observer and Ten-17fm, will become the biggest hospice event in the country.

The walk, which will follow a 10km route around Harlow's network of cycle paths, takes place on the evening of Saturday, June 21. That means there are now only seven weeks left to register so if you fancy a gentle stroll on what will hopefully be a warm summer's evening in sign up NOW.

This is NOT a race or a run; you can go at your own pace in what promises to be a great night out.

Registration could not be simpler - you can request a registration pack by telephone or, even easier, register online. Just follow the instructions in the panel.

The cost of registration is £15 per walker but of course you can raise much more for the hospice by getting yourself sponsored. To take part you must be over the age of 16. Places are limited and will be allocated in the order entries are processed.

Marshals will be stationed along the route - which starts and finishes at The Water Gardens - to guide and assist participants when necessary. The Midnight Walk is accessible to wheelchair users.

So come on, register online or phone the 24-hour hotline to request a registration pack. And to all those who have already applied for a registration pack, make sure you return it as soon as possible.

Man cleared of nightclub sex assaults

A MAN accused of groping three women at a Harlow nightclub has been cleared of sexual assault by a jury.

Vytautas Gricius (29), of Risdens, Harlow, walked free from court on Friday after being found not guilty of all three charges against him following a three-day trial.

The jury at Chelmsford Crown Court was told that the allegations against Gricius centred on incidents which were supposed to have taken place on the dance floor at Fat Sam's, in Terminus Street, on September 15 last year.

Richard Stevens, prosecuting, said Gricius approached one woman and asked her for a dance before putting his hand up her skirt.

It was claimed he did the same thing to a second woman while the third complained that he had grabbed her buttock.

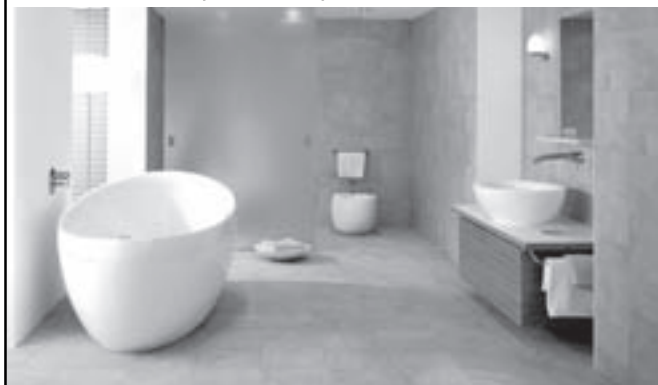

The court heard that when an acquaintance of the three women was told what had happened he punched Gricius in the face outside the club, an offence for which the individual later received a police caution.

Giving evidence, Gricius said he may have held one woman around the waist when he asked her for a dance but denied touching her inappropriately.

He said he had not touched any woman on the leg or buttock and described a suggestion by one woman that he had tried to drag her towards the women's toilet as nonsense.

The defendant added that he could not even remember seeing one of the complainants that evening, adding that he was shocked by the allegations

Soldier's father and friend take a plunge

THE father of a Harlow soldier killed in Afghanistan was one of many who braved new heights for charity at the weekend.

John Foster abseiled down Church Langley water tower in memory of son Rob (19), who died in a friendly fire attack last year, and to raise funds for 1st Battalion Royal Anglian Regiment's Afghanistan Memorial Fund. He took part with Rob's friend and neighbour, Greig Williamson (29), of Great Plumtree, jointly raising £1,000.

Harry Joseph (92), of School Lane, Harlow, also joined the 200-plus who made the drop in the two-day event –

Harlow Tye Rotary Club's 12th – helping collect more than £60,000 for charities.

He made in £620 for St Clare Hospice in Hastingwood and is thought to be one of the world's oldest abseilers after Portsmouth grandmother Doris Long (94) broke the record earlier this month.

Rotary spokesman Don Cramphorn said the event is now believed to be Essex's biggest fundraising event. Also taking part were Harlow Council chairwoman Lorna Spencely and Friends Of Johnny Wong, a group dedicated to saving Old Harlow's Victoria Hall Theatre from closure.

Police move into heart of a beat

By CHRIS MOSS
mosscc@hertsessexnews.co.uk

BOBBIES on the beat in Potter Street will soon have a new base in the heart of the community, allowing them more time to tackle crime and anti-social behaviour.

Thanks to concerted lobbying by the local residents' association, officers and PCSOs stationed in the locality will shortly enjoy the convenience of an office in Potter Street Community Centre.

The move comes after a campaign led by the Harlow Common Residents' Association with support from Harlow MP Bill Rammell and ward councillor Mark Wilkinson, and means officers will no longer have to trek back to their town centre HQ.

"This was a simple solution to a problem which has existed for a long time," said Mr Rammell. "It will mean that police will be even more accessible to the public than ever before, and this move also builds on Harlow's excellent record for tackling low-level anti-social behaviour."

Residents' group chairman Mike Duckmanton enthused: "I welcome the move; it is something we have lobbied for strongly for a long time and I feel it could make all the difference to our local area."

The opening of the new office is the latest policing initiative to be pioneered in Harlow; in 2004, the first dispersal order ever issued in the UK was secured in Harlow Common and earned the area a visit from then-Prime Minister Tony Blair.

Chief Inspector Mike Martin said: "Our priority through neighbourhood policing is to get at the heart of the communities and find out what matters most to the people that live and work there."

be aware of the difference between freedom of speech and breaking the law and confirmed officers will be monitoring the site.

"We are obviously treating this seriously," he added.

On Friday evening, almost 400 people met at Milwards School to hear Morningtons resident John Downes explain why the plan should be rejected.

Mr Downes, who had called the meeting, claimed to have identified potential problems including parking chaos and concerns over a corpse-washing facility.

"The application states that there could be up to 600 people attending the mosque at any one time," he said. "Can you imagine the problems residents and parents picking their kids up from school will have trying to park? Another major concern is this body-washing room, which would mean that dead bodies are being prepared for burial just yards from a school playground."

Resident Christine Odell braved a chorus of boos and catcalls to state: "Standing here today in front of this mob makes me ashamed to be British. Muslims have as much right as we do to have somewhere to worship."

A petition calling for Harlow Council to reject the plans collected 350 signatures.

Our town needs a new hospital

SIR, Re: the residential planning application at St Margaret's Hospital, it is worrying how out of touch certain prominent people are. Their notion that most people in Epping support the principle of residential development on the site at St Margaret's Hospital, is untrue. The vast majority of us are totally against any such development there.

New local housing is needed, but not at St Margaret's. The closure of St Margaret's as a general hospital was a dreadful mistake – which the people of Epping, Epping Forest District, Harlow, East Herts and Uttlesford have suffered severely from ever since. What we all want, need and undoubtedly should have, is a new general hospital, with accident and emergency department to replace the much-needed and much-loved one we were so unjustifiably and crassly deprived of.

Residential development there is completely against the East of England Regional Development Plan. This calls for thousands of new homes throughout this area. Even a modicum of joined-up thinking on the part of Government would tell them that plan will require all the necessary infrastructure to go with it. Probably the most important element of this is the new general hospital the enormous number of new residents, particularly when added to the present total, will need.

We should all call for a new general hospital, which we vitally need, to be built there instead.

Bus really no fuss

SIR, Kevin McGrath complains that since April 1, the free bus pass for the over-60s is now valid from 9.30am in Essex and not 9am (Letters, April 17).

Why is that such a problem? It simply means that people will have to start their journeys 30 minutes later which, unless they have an appointment, is of no consequence.

I will be eligible for a free pass in a year's time and, were I living in Harlow, would not see this as a problem. I think it is wonderful that I shall be able to travel free to so many places, which I am not eligible to do now, and shall be grateful for it.

Would Mr McGrath prefer to return to the days when it was only over-60s living in London boroughs who qualified for free travel? I think not ...

Mrs B. Levine
Stewards Green Road, Epping

Thanks for work

SIR, I would like to thank James Dickinson, the community safety officer at Harlow Council, and all his colleagues and the local school children who recently came to visit Fountain Farm sheltered bungalows.

Together, they cleared up the pond and surrounding areas which had become very overgrown with brambles and weeds. The result is we now have a lovely looking pond which all the elderly residents and neighbours can enjoy.

M. Everest
Ex-resident warden, Fountain Farm, Harlow

Tenants warning

SIR, Tenants, beware! Recently, the Conservative leader, Andrew Johnson, hinted that they could sell off council housing to housing associations.

No matter that many years go, tenants made it very clear they wanted to remain with the council, voting overwhelmingly against stock transfer. No matter that there are crucial reasons for rejecting selling off council houses:

- rents and service charges would be much higher;
- tenants could not hold remote landlords to account for repairs and maintenance or complain to their local councillors;
- 'secure' tenancies would be threatened. No longer would they enjoy

All letters must be supplied with a name and address. Anonymous letters will not be published unless there are extenuating circumstances statutory rights in law. Financial insecurity in the private housing market would make tenants much more vulnerable;

● public land, owned by Harlow residents, would be stripped for private development. Labour councillors are committed to retaining council housing – decent, affordable and secure homes, where residents can hold the council to account. We're pressing for investment to improve the quality of housing and enable the council to build new homes ... the tenants' choice, not selling off the family silver!

Councillor Jean Clark
Civic Centre, Harlow

Parking a hazard

SIR, I would like to draw the attention of the local authority and Harlow police service to the continuous hazard caused by the inconsiderate and dangerous parking on and around the zebra crossing area between Bush Fair post office and Tye Green Library.

Despite Bush Fair having a large public car park, many car and van drivers feel it necessary to stop, leave their vehicle on the zig-zag painted lines and 'pop into the shops' thus jeopardising the lives of local residents on a daily basis.

As one of many regular users of the shopping area I would like to hear from local residents who have had to endanger their lives making the short journey between Bush Fair Shopping Area and the Tye Green Library.

The drivers of the vehicles on and around the crossing are obviously parking on a designated clearway which has adequate signage and road markings, however, these inconsiderate people obviously feel that the lives of Bush Fair residents who use this crossing are of a lesser value than their own. How else could they justify their parking behaviour to a court if they contribute to a fatal accident?

Come on Bush Fair residents, let's campaign for better policing and challenge this inconsiderate behaviour that, along with anti-social behaviour, litter and vandalism, lets down our otherwise excellent town. Contact me on (01279) 431001 to voice your concerns.

Surgeries threat

SIR, Government plans to replace local GP surgeries with impersonal super-surgeries known as polyclinics could have serious implications for family GP surgeries across Harlow and Epping.

It has been estimated that 1,700 family doctor surgeries could be closed down across England. Estimates have suggested that across West Essex PCT, up to four GP surgeries could be shut under Labour's plans. Polyclinics are little different from a small hospital and nothing like the independent, local GP practice with just a few doctors that patients know and trust. Already, Labour ministers are planning to end the era of local GP surgeries in almost every area. This will mean that patients will have to travel further to receive treatment, which will particularly disadvantage the elderly and families with small children.

It is bad enough that our local Post Offices are under threat and thousands are closing across the country – and many across Essex. Now GP surgeries – vital community institutions, seem under threat.

If Polyclinics are imposed on us, patients will be lucky to see the same GP twice. This is already happening in Roydon, with the closure of the village surgery.

Gordon Brown should not be allowed to force polyclinics on areas where they are unwanted and not needed.

PAH staff so kind

SIR, Recent media publicity has alleged that in hospitals all over the country, elderly patients are badly treated, left dirty, malnourished and discharged early as the beds are required for other patients.

My 90-year-old dad Alf has just come out of PAH after a stay of six weeks. He had major surgery followed by a chest infection.

He was never made to feel a nuisance and underwent many tests, both medical and neurological, to try to find an answer. During all this time, he, my 92-year-old mum and all our family were treated with compassion and respect.

My dad was desperate to come home but the doctors would not discharge him until they were sure they had sorted out his problems. I am pleased to say that they did.

We would like to thank Mr Vivek and his surgical team, the medical team and all the nurses on Saunders ward. If we could put you up for an award, we would.

Justice for father

SIR, I am amazed at the hard-hearted attitude of S.J. Lodge (Letters, April 24).

Re: "Many people are sick and tired of it in the Press", I am sure Mr Lubbock will never be sick and tired of trying to bring whoever slaughtered his son to justice. Even if Mr Barrymore was not responsible, he must certainly know who was.

The man, even with this terrible guilt on his mind, has the effrontery to stand up on a stage and try to make people laugh, as though he hasn't a care in the world.

The best of luck to Mr Lubbock and may he live to see the perpetrator in a prison cell where he belongs. There are many waiting to see justice done.

Team's award for lung idea

A HOME-grown innovation improving treatment for patients with a lung condition has scooped health service staff in west Essex an award.

West Essex Primary Care Trust has won the Health Enterprise East 2008 Innovation Competition for its pioneering way of managing patients with recurrent pleural effusions, a build-up of fluid around the lungs.

The system, devised by PCT medics Ram Gulrajani, Elaine Reid and Elaine Dean, cuts down the time sufferers have to spend in hospital because their effusions can be drained at home using a catheter.

As well as the prestigious title, the trio were presented with a cheque for £2,000 to help take the idea further.

Schools picked out for praise

SCHOOLS in Harlow are among those recognised for helping to improve students' year-on-year learning.

Burnt Mill School, Stewards School and Passmores School and Technology College have been praised by the Government's Specialist Schools And Academies body for adding value to students GCSE achievements.

The acknowledgement, which was also given to a further 515 schools in England, comes after a study looked at average results and the number of pupils receiving A*-C grades in all subjects.

Beating victim jailed for biting off earlobe

Bikers' farewell to Dave

A MUCH-loved father-to-be was given a fitting send-off by 300 fellow bikers on Friday.

Dave Westall (26), of Park Mead, Harlow, died at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital after his motorbike was in collision with a car in Chelmsford on April 15.

On Friday, his coffin was carried to Parndon Wood crematorium in a special sidecar hearse and escorted by hundreds of bikers, many of them members of the Essex Outlaws motorcycle group of which he was a member. The party then returned to the Latton Bush Centre, where a wake was held.

The former St Mark's School pupil and former member of Harlow Rugby Club and Epping Cricket Club was known affectionately to his family as Doorman Dave. His girlfriend is expecting the couple's first child.

A MAN assaulted by bouncers at a Harlow nightclub has been jailed for a year for biting off part of one of his assailant's ears.

Glen Mulkey (42), of Churchfield, Harlow, pleaded guilty at Chelmsford Crown Court on Friday to wounding Simon Hales with intent to cause grievous bodily harm.

But Judge Anthony Goldstaub told Mulkey his actions were "momentary and the fruit of considerable provocation."

The incident took place in November 2006 after Mulkey was refused entry into Yates's Wine Lodge, in Market Square.

He had been arguing with doorman Simon Hales, who was being supported by two other bouncers, and during the heated exchange Mulkey said something which annoyed Mr Hales who he launched an assault on him.

The court heard Mr Hales forced Mulkey backwards and the other two then joined in with what Judge Goldstaub called "a punitive beating-up."

Mulkey struggled to avoid the beating and at one point, as he was being lifted into the air, he seized Mr Hales' head and bit his left ear lobe, ripping a part of it off.

When the police arrived they helped the bouncers restrain Mulkey, who then received a kick to the head from Mr Hales.

The piece of Mr Hales' ear was recovered by police and surgeons were able to reattach it.

The court also heard that at an earlier hearing Mr Hales (29), of Canons Brook, Harlow, admitted assaulting Mulkey and was given a conditional discharge for 12 months.

In mitigation, Lawrence Aiolfi said Mulkey was wrongly refused entry to Yates's and when he challenged the decision an argument began.

He said Mulkey had accepted responsibility for biting Mr Hales' ear and added: "It's clear that he was attacked first and that he initially began acting in self-defence."

He also said Mulkey was a hard-working, married family man with two children.

Judge Goldstaub accepted Mulkey had acted "in the heat of the moment" but told Mulkey: "This paints a picture of you as a drunken and abusive hooligan."

Former pub was just fob-ulous

BERNIE Walker's musings two weeks ago on Hastingwood's Bull and Horseshoes pub – now a McDonald's burger franchise – jogged the memory of someone with more recent recollections of the place. Reader Jonjak Blackburn remembers drinking in the hostelry shortly before it closed to be left derelict. "It was one of those places that as soon as you entered it felt as though you were in the middle of the countryside, he said. "A lovely greeting, a warm open fire and then the key rings – I remember the oak beams were absolutely covered in them, "It was a fascinating place but you spent so much time looking at the key rings, you always left with a stiff neck!"

Church hall was the big social hub

KATHLEEN Chadwick, a Bush Fair resident of 50 years, writes with early memories of St Stephen's Church Hall.

"On Saturday summer evenings, there were social get-togethers for families doing all sorts of activities – dancing, singing, darts or just chatting and getting to know each other," she recalled.

"At that time, I helped run an old people's club, starting with about 30 members, which we ran at Little Brays Common Room – it was known as the Evergreen Club and I believe it still exists today.

"Eventually, with more families moving in, our club reached over 100 members, so we transferred to the hall.

"The vicar was a great help and joined us most times to chat or play cards with the men." Mrs Chadwick added: "Before little St Andrew's Church by Netteswell Pond was decommissioned for marriage, we had one happy occasion when two of our members were married – a lovely memory.

"Very few of the shops at Bush Fair were complete then, so the development corporation allowed us to set up stalls in the empty shells to sell home-made goods our members had made to raise money for the club."

By
BEN WILKINSON

UNLIKE many local newspapers throughout the country, the Star is put together in the heart of the town it serves.

But while today, 8 West Gate houses one half of Star HQ, the shop started life as the home of Harlow's sole dressmaking business – Alice Flight.

Mrs Flight, now aged 84 and living in Tye Green Lodge retirement home, started out working from home in The Dashes and Little Pynchons, but in 1963 her dream came true when she and husband Arthur opened their "gown salon".

The process of obtaining finance was aided by the fact that Alice made clothes for the bank manager's wife!

Despite having no formal dressmaking training, learning all her skills from her mother and books, she had built up a good reputation and the shop was an instant hit.

"I started dressmaking for friends before I left school," said Mrs Flight. "Later on, I always had lots of sewing to do. I had lots of children's wear to make, party dresses, evening wear. This was excellent experience for my plans of owning a shop with my own range of clothing and materials." The shop specialised in exclusive garments, with prices starting at £5/5s. All the clothes were made in Mrs Flight's own workrooms behind the shop and at Bush Fair, where she employed 20 people.

Among the shop's claims to fame

was designing, in 1966, the wedding dress for the daughter of Ben Hyde Harvey, the town architect later to be immortalised by the indoor shopping centre named in his honour.

Mrs Flight also introduced Harlow to the 'topless dress', a garment considered extremely revealing at the time and which even caused a stir when displayed on a mannequin in the window!

A press report from the time told of how "hurrying workers slowed down with a jerk, youngsters giggled and groups of men looked on with no noticeable secret about their appreciation".

Mrs Flight told the paper at the time: "We have taken the plunge because topless dresses are so much in the news and because we are high fashion in Harlow. What's good enough for the West End is good enough for Harlow."

But despite the attention attracted, orders for the £8/8s dresses were slow. As Mrs Flight admitted: "Husbands, in general, admire the dress – as long as it isn't their wives who are going to wear it!"

The West Gate shop closed a few years later and the business moved to Staple Tye, then London Road. Mrs Flight finally hung up her tape measure in 1986.

"I'm now living happily in Tye Green Lodge but I miss my old life," she said. "It was pretty full, and maybe I couldn't do all those things any more but I do wish I could pass on my knowledge."

DRIVING TUTOR ON KIDNAP CHARGE

A DRIVING instructor from Harlow appeared in Redbridge Magistrates' Court on Monday, accused of kidnapping a teenager and demanding a £200,000 ransom.

Everything's looking lovely in the garden

IT'S prime time in the garden right now. Everything is looking lush and plentiful and you need to keep on top of things if everything is to look its best.

There is a wealth of gardening experts in the local area who can help you with everything from weeding and mowing to building a new garden shed or lining a pond.

Whether you're a seasoned, green-fingered gardener or a novice when it comes to planting and pricking out, why not take a look at some of the top services available from some of our advertisers, who will help you get the most out of your garden this summer.

● If you haven't already done so, give your border a spring clean. Weed it, remove dead plants and plant replacements.

A mulch will help keep weeds down, conserve soil moisture and generally make the border look tidy.

Put link stakes and metal grow-through supports into position on the taller perennials if you didn't last month.

● Start clipping box (Buxus) hedging. This is an ongoing job through the summer months.

● Remove leaves from daffodils as they turn brown and collapse. Later-flowering varieties benefit from removal of the dead flowers (to prevent seeding and to focus plant on building up the bulb), the leaves should be left for six weeks after flowering to help build up the flowers for next year.

● The last frost date is usually the third week in May, although take local growing conditions and the weather forecast into account.

This means you can remove insulating material permanently from tree ferns and other tender plants.

● Mow the lawn once a week unless the ground is very wet underfoot. Keep the edges neat to set off borders and for general tidiness. If you have a wild area, then use a garden trimmer.

● Now is a key time for planting both hardy container plants and some of the tender plants, such as bedding plants and over-wintered dahlias.

● Check the level of ponds and water features, and top up with water if needed. Remove blanketweed regularly, taking care not to remove any pondlife at the same time.

● Prune shrubs that have flowered in spring, for example, Exochorda, Berberis (evergreen types), Cytisus and Ribes. Trim early-flowering clematis after flowering if they have outgrown their space.

● Keep off lawns and soil when it is very wet; instead, prepare prunings for shredding (do not use a power shredder outside when it's wet), or top up paths and the base of trees with chipped bark or a mulch of your choice.

Catch up with plant labels - particularly for investment plants such as trees and shrubs.

Graffiti yobs target church

By LOUISE SASSOON
News Editor
sassooni@hertsessexnews.co.uk

POLICE officers are to step up their patrols at a Harlow church after it was vandalised by yobs.

Graffiti has been sprayed on the walls of St Mary-at-Latton Church, in First Avenue, and words etched into the building.

There has also been evidence of drug-taking and scores of empty drink cans and bottles have been discarded in the church grounds.

Community police officers are now keeping a special watch on the area and are asking for the public's help to identify troublemakers who treat the graveyard as a meeting place.

Church warden Anne Laurence said: "It is very unpleasant. Sometimes the graffiti is unpleasant – somebody told me about something which was written there the other day which had to be scrubbed off."

"Sometimes it is anti-God, sometimes it looks like it is just kids."

She added that there had also been

CHURCH PATROL: PCSOs Nikola Hunt and Marc Barr at St Mary-at-Latton Church which has been a target for vandals (photo: XZCDCYMD/03)

reports of hypodermic needles being found.

"We have told the police that it would be helpful to have some sort of presence there to try and put a stop to this," she said.

Police community support officer Mark Barr said the church had suffered problems of anti-social behaviour during the past year which had died down but were once again being brought to his attention.

"This behaviour is unacceptable," he said. "I have been there myself a number of times but I have not seen any activity so it is hard to progress with it until we have any more information."

"Anybody who is found to be there causing criminal damage, drinking or smoking drugs will be dealt with robustly."

Anyone with information should call Mr Barr on 0300 333 4444.

Brothers in court to deny river boat death charge

THE trial of two brothers accused of killing a pleasure boat captain is due to start at the Old Bailey today (Thursday).

Christopher Liddard (22), of Challinor, Harlow, and Andrew Liddard (28), of Plomer Avenue, Hoddesdon, face a charge of manslaughter following the death of Michael Reed (66).

Both men entered pleas of not guilty when they appeared in court yesterday (Wednesday).

Mr Reed, a senior crew member of the City Cruises boat The Millennium of Peace, died from a heart attack following an incident with boat passengers on June 2 last year.

The Stepney born dad-of-three, who had worked on the River Thames as a lighterman for the past 50 years, was due to retire the following day.

Both defendants are also charged with affray and assault occasioning actual bodily harm in connection with the incident.

MP seeks housing pledge

HARLOW MP Bill Rammell is to press the new landowners of the proposed Harlow North site to ensure that necessary infrastructure is in place before any building work commences.

The Star reported last week that a partnership of two property firms – Land Securities and Places For People – is set to purchase 2,400 acres of land from Ropemaker Properties for an undisclosed sum.

The deal is thought to be conditional on the plans for Harlow

North being given the green light in the East of England Plan.

Reacting to the news of the deal, Mr Rammell said: "I have always made clear we need new homes for Harlow residents and a big element of these homes should be north of Harlow."

"I'm pressing the Government to ensure along with growth we get the infrastructure and investment we need and I will be making this case as well to the new owners of the land within Harlow North."

Cambridge move for editor-in-chief

COLIN Grant, Group Editor-in-Chief of Star publisher Herts & Essex Newspapers, is leaving the company to rejoin our sister company in Cambridge.

He is to take up the Group Editor's role at Cambridge, having joined HEN in November 2004 after being Editor of the Cambridge Evening News.

"It has been a time of much progression during my three-and-a-half years with Herts & Essex Newspapers," said Colin. "All our titles have been redesigned and greatly modernised since I came here, the websites have taken some excellent strides forward and it has been rewarding to see the titles and our staff honoured by the industry in receiving both national and regional awards during that time."

"One of my biggest aims since moving to the area has been to get our titles much closer to the communities they serve in terms of the types of stories we produce, in supporting worthy causes and in launching appeals and campaigns where appropriate."

"We have done so to good effect in Harlow, getting involved with local groups and organisations in many ways. The upcoming Midnight Walk in the town, for which we are the main media sponsor, promises to be a tremendous occasion."

"I am sure the title will continue to go from strength to strength and thank all our readers for their continued support."

Colin is succeeded by Richard Byham who, within his role of Publisher, will take overall responsibility for the editorial and newspaper sales functions of HEN.

Art exhibition that will get right up your nose!

DID you ever think you would be able to experience the smell of the Sun or even the scent of Cleopatra's hair?

Well now you can and it's all thanks to a man called Robert Blackson, the curator of an art museum in Sunderland.

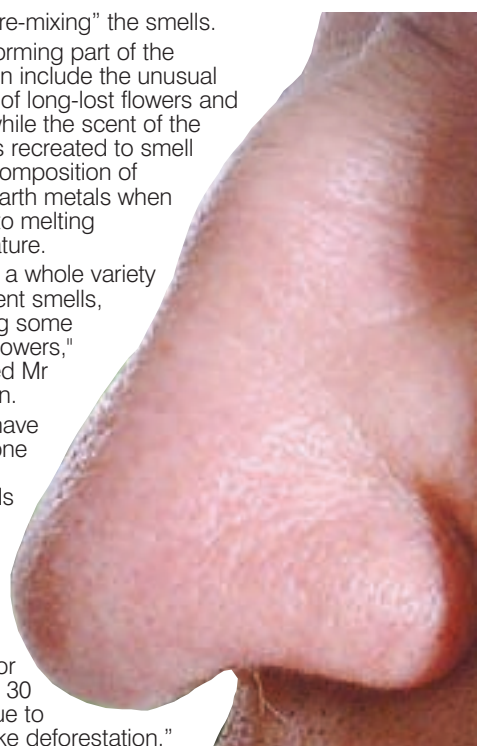

The gallery, which forms part of Sunderland University, has decided to take a very different approach to its latest art exhibition by focusing on smell rather than sight.

A smell will often conjure up pleasant memories like family holidays by the seaside or a delicious meal. But this display aims to allow visitors to experience scents their noses won't have picked out before. The fourteen scents were painstakingly created by a team of researchers and perfume experts who looked at what each object was made of and other environmental factors before "re-mixing" the smells. Those forming part of the exhibition include the unusual aromas of long-lost flowers and plants while the scent of the Sun was recreated to smell like its composition of seven Earth metals when heated to melting temperature.

"There's a whole variety of different smells, including some extinct flowers," explained Mr Blackson.

"Some have been gone for hundreds of years whilst others have only been extinct for the past 30 years due to things like deforestation."

Parking charge plea to council

A LEADING regional business organisation has called on Harlow Council to rethink its prohibitive town centre parking policies amid claims it is stifling the local economy.

The Essex Federation of Small Businesses believes that excessive parking charges are killing town centres while filling the coffers of local authorities.

It warned that short-term revenue-raising through "draconian" parking measures will backfire in the long-term as shops begin to struggle with a decreasing footfall.

Essex FSB regional organiser Terry Taber said: "Every town is different and you can't impose exactly the same parking policies everywhere.

"But local authorities should come up with a set of criteria for parking policies that encourage shoppers into town centres rather than turning them away.

"Although parking restrictions can raise a lot of cash in the short term, they can be extremely damaging to local economies and ultimately counter-productive."

Beating recession over a breakfast

HARLOW and District Chamber of Commerce is holding a networking breakfast to inform business bosses how to better make their companies recession-proof.

The event is at the Park Inn Hotel, in Southern Way, at 8am on Wednesday and tickets are £10 plus vat for members and £15 plus vat for non-members.

For details, call 0845 685 0010.

New business centre a major step closer

When work day is child's play

CHILDREN got the chance to see what their parents do for a living when Kier Harlow invited staff to take their children into work with them.

The action-packed day saw 24 children indulge in a spot of gardening, brush up on their painting and decorating skills and learn all about recycling before competing to see who could make the best bird box.

They also joined parents for a litter-pick in Prentice Place before being taught an important video lesson on the environmental impact of littering by Mr Dumpy – a converted dust-cart which serves as an educational resource unit.

Kier worker Debbie Hardy said: "The kids all had an absolutely fantastic time seeing what their mums and dads get up to at work."

THE creation of Harlow's landmark Business Incubation Centre has taken another step forward with the appointment of a management company to establish and run the new facility.

Not-for-profit organisation Norfolk & Waveney Enterprise Services specialises in promoting self-employment, assisting start-up businesses and helping existing firms to survive and grow.

It will take the reins upon the completion of the centre which is expected to be in November.

The firm was cherry-picked by Harlow Council for its 26-year track record of meeting the needs of companies in the eastern region, with the firm claiming to have helped create 1,500 new businesses in the past three years alone.

NWES chief executive Kevin Horne said: "Our research has already shown that this new centre is ideally situated and configured as a base to develop the considerable potential that exists in Harlow for new businesses and business acceleration.

"We have a proven model for encouraging enterprise already in operation across the region and based on our four cornerstones of providing business advice; bespoke training, funding opportunities and flexible premises.

"The new centre will be the base for these services but our support structure will not only be available to tenants but will stretch across Harlow and beyond – these are certainly exciting times for the Harlow business community."

The organisation will now work alongside the council and Harlow Renaissance to encourage more entrepreneurial activity while also beginning the search for tenants.

Council growth and regeneration head Cath Shaw added: "People in Harlow are full of good ideas for new businesses and the Harlow Business Incubation Centre will provide just the kind of business support and office space that they need to turn those ideas into reality."

The wits and wisdom of a national treasure

THE Playhouse has again secured an icon from the lilting backwaters of English culture to tickle us with old school anecdotes and tales of derring-do.

Two years ago it was the flamboyant Keith Floyd, all arms and ribaldry; Tuesday night, however, was the turn of the legendary cricket commentator Henry 'Blowers' Blofield.

And fair enough, this was not exactly mainstream – if you don't listen to Radio 4 or the World Service, chances are you won't have a clue as to who this chap is.

It's fair to say also that Blowers sits ever so slightly to the right of the House, unsurprising due to his Eton education, which he was thankfully fairly reticent about, yet his jokes/anecdotes (it was hard to distinguish between the two at times) all headed towards a punchline delivery worthy of any stand-up.

He artfully combined stories about his family's doctor with a joke about a hiccupping nun before he segued into his joy at keeping wicket at his beloved Lord's Cricket Ground, in the Eton versus Harrow match.

The coincidences leading up to his joining of the Test Match Special team were all captivating and his humbleness at being a colleague of the much-missed

REVIEW

AN EVENING WITH BLOWERS

The Playhouse, Harlow

Brian Johnston – incredibly 27 years Blowers' senior – was greatly endearing.

"We were in the pavilion commentating in those days," he recalled, "exactly where we should be, before they stuck us in that ghastly creation of the Media Centre at Lord's which, however hard I try not to think about it, reminds me of our last Prime Minister's wife."

In his recollections of the brilliant wit of Johnners, the audience collectively leaned forward, as if listening to Blowers' accounts somehow brought them closer to the quintessence of cricket and allowed them to almost touch the face of their wireless heroes.

No evening with Blowers would be complete without the story of Johnners' delivery of his now legendary "The batsman's Holding, the bowler's Willy", or the pitch-invading dachshund which Johnners likened to a fast bowler: "It must be, it's got four short legs and its balls swing both ways!"

Frankly, life just wouldn't be the same for so many, as proved on Tuesday night, without the home-spun comforts of the shipping forecast, Sailing By, Test Match Special and Mr Henry Calthorpe Blofield.

Insight into puppetry's art

THERE were plenty of strings attached as a group of performers learnt new techniques in the art of puppetry.

Puppeteer Sue Dacre ran the workshop for Razed Roof Theatre, Harlow's inclusive theatre group for those with and without learning difficulties.

Mrs Dacre has been recruited to help Razed Roof members via her work at Islington's The Little Angel Theatre and the use of her puppets in some

Race against the past and an evil corporation

MOTOR HEAD: The enigmatic Racer X, one of the competitors in SPEED RACERS (s)

FOR those old enough to remember the cult Japanese anime series, this no-expense-spared movie adaptation of the high-octane cartoon will be a welcome trip down the memory fast-lane.

As you'd expect from anything directed by the Wachowski brothers (the boffins behind The Matrix trilogy), the emphasis is on pushing the boundaries of special effects rather than plot depth but this will be of no great concern for popcorn film-fanatics looking for a vicarious adrenaline rush.

The story revolves around a hip young gunslinger called Speed Racer (Emile Hirsch), with racing in certificate PG, running time 2h15m

his blood and his heart set on winning The Crucible – a notoriously dangerous cross-country rally which claimed the life of his idolised older brother Rex.

Speed is loyal to the family car-racing business run by his parents and drives the supercar his father (John Goodman) designed for him, so when he's offered the chance to race for sinister corporate mega-firm Royalton he naturally turns them down.

This defiance is not taken well by the psychotic owner of said corporation and when Speed stumbles across information linking it to a multi-million dollar race-fixing ring, this only makes matters worse for the maverick driver.

Desperate to keep their controversial secret from the public and having failed to lure Speed into their hands, Royalton decide to pull out all the stops to prevent him from ever crossing the finishing line.

The only way for Speed to save his family's business and secure the future of the sport he loves is to beat Royalton at its own game.

Enlisting the undying support of his close-knit family and his loyal girlfriend Trixie (Christina Ricci), he joins forces with his one-time rival – the enigmatic, Stig-like Racer X – to enter the epic race and take the title.

IN THE MONEY: Ashton Kutcher and Cameron Diaz star in WHAT HAPPENS IN VEGAS (s)

Honeymoon in Vegas needing a slot of luck

WHAT HAPPENS IN VEGAS

certificate 12A, running time 1h39m

ASHTON Kutcher and Cameron Diaz team up for this mediocre riff on the increasingly yawnsome rom-com genre as a pair of strangers who accidentally get married in Vegas after winning big on the slots.

Unfortunately, Kutcher is better known for being Demi Moore's toyboy than for his risible talents as an actor and one of the film's major shortcomings is its vain struggle to paper over the cracks of his somewhat limited range.

We've all been there – you go out in Sin City, find a streak of rotten luck, wind up in the bar, hit on a leggy blonde, borrow a quarter from her, win $3m, marry her, wake up, run for the toilet and then file for divorce – all in the space of 24 hours.

Of course, the considerable sum of tax-free money you've come into makes matters a little more complicated, especially when you both stake a convincing claim to be its rightful owner and neither of you is willing to share.

This is the blind alley the film then stumbles down, with the viewer forced to sit and endure an hour of sub-standard comedy squabbling, double-crossing and blackmail before the pair inevitably begin to fall in love with one another – but are their feelings actually as genuine as they seem?

sound check with Chris Moss

MANY of our loyal Sound Check readers will be familiar with the inimitable stylings of Harlow's very own punk poet philosopher by now, a man whose meteoric rise from struggling musician to minor local celebrity has been implicitly charted on these very pages.

Armed with little more than a battered guitar and an innately disarming charm, Mr Roxx has continually wooed the hecklers with homegrown tales of fish and chips romance, Essex girls and shady wheeler-dealers – all underpinned with a brilliantly blunt sense of humour and an undefined, subtle frailty.

His tone may be mocking but it always remains affectionate, finding that elusive middle ground where even those lampooned can have a laugh at own expense.

He undoubtedly takes several cues from a certain Mr Doherty's more lucid moments, but it never seems like a forced persona or another rock'n'roll cliché – more a classic case of what you see is what you get, warts 'n' all honesty.

Having taken up a semi-permanent residency at Quattrozz, his stock is rising and, who knows, maybe one day this lowlife laureate will be preaching his post-punk paeans to the converted masses.

EITHER SIDE OF MIDNIGHT

Jack McManus (album, Polydor)

Anyone described by national newspaper reviewers as “a one-man melody factory” with songs that are “immaculate and impossibly catchy” should be treated with suspicion from the outset, especially if they have a crazy Afro and, prior to being discovered, was a professional trumpet player. The first single from this, Bang On The Piano, not only sums up what he does on pretty much every track on the album but is about as interesting as it gets, the rest relying on '70s-themed nostalgia to keep you interested. A retro sound isn't necessarily a bad thing, but sadly this is more Pilot than ELO. File alongside James Morrison.

GROWL

Radioactiveman (album, Control Tower)

Radioactiveman – aka the slightly less edgily named Keith Tenniswood – seemingly wanted a dance-trance album which rolled and grew like a gathering storm; dark, ominous and foreboding. Instead, we have what sounds more like wind-breaking in the bath. It contains the most predictable layering, ie, a new

Remade classic just a bloody mess

HALLOWEEN
(Paramount Home Entertainment, 18, retail & rental)

After showing a lot of promise as a director with the chaotic House Of 1,000 Corpses and the more assured The Devil's Rejects, it's a shame Rob Zombie should stumble so badly by offering up this ill-conceived remake of a genre classic as his calling card to the major leagues.

Even in a time when no film is deemed untouchable in the endless carousel of remakes, a certain logic dictates that some simply can't be improved on and should be left well alone.

John Carpenter's 1978 Halloween is an acknowledged masterpiece, a film of such powerful simplicity that it can claim to have spawned the entire slasher genre while still towering above its imitators.

And in Michael Myers, it introduced one of cinema's most iconic bogeymen, a relentless killing machine who seemed more a distillation of cold evil draped in human flesh than just another escaped psychopath out to terrorise the teenagers of Haddonfield.

From the start of his 're-imagining', it's hard to ignore the nagging concern that Zombie just doesn't understand the mechanisms that made the largely bloodless original work so well; Carpenter's brief opening sequence in which the child Michael kills his sister on Halloween night is here extended to more than an hour of back story which serves only to reduce him to just another serial killer of the week.

We get to spend a lot of time with his white trash family – stripper mum (Sheri Moon Zombie), abusive alcoholic step-father (William Forsythe) and slutty sister – and watch the sullen, puffy-faced kid progress from killing animals to going mental on his school tormentors.

Enter hip shrink Dr Sam Loomis (Malcolm McDowell, taking the Donald Pleasance role in one of the better casting decisions) and a lot of psychobabble until Michael wigs out and kills his family; but Zombie's still not done and clings to the institutionalised killer until he's a hulking, mask-obsessed behemoth (the implausibly huge Tyler Mane) who one day decides to break out and go home.

At which point the director seems to lose his nerve and opts to play out the rest of the film as a truncated remake of the original, using Carpenter's music and weirdly replicating some moments shot-for-shot, all in a welter of souped-up gore.

Although not entirely devoid of interest, it's a mess of a film and Zombie's inability to add anything new without pulling its teeth underlines just how perfectly structured it was in the first place.

Perhaps his problem is that he's one of those horror movie fans who finds the monsters cool, a leaning which robs him of the ability to make them what they should be first, foremost and always – scary.

ROMANCE WITH A DOUBLE BASS
(Liberation Entertainment, 12, retail)

Before creating the landmark Fawlty Towers, John Cleese and wife Connie Booth collaborated on this utterly delightful and surprisingly saucy 1974 adaptation of a short story by Anton Chekhov.

Shot on a shoestring by director Robert Young but using its locations so well that it looks like a far more expensive production, it's the simple story of Princess Costanza (Booth), who escapes the pressure of her wedding day with a spot of fishing only to find she has to disrobe and enter the water to retrieve a valuable bauble. A little further up the river is double bass player Smychkov (Cleese), who takes a swim to escape the heat of the Russian summer.

When a thief steals their clothing, the naked pair are brought together and Smychkov undertakes to preserve the princess' dignity by smuggling her back to the palace in his instrument's case.

The pair are the main focus of the 40-minute running time and play the gentle comedy of embarrassment and growing affection pitch-perfect, getting first-rate support from June Whitfield, Graham Crowden, Freddie Jones and Andrew Sachs.

Among the extras are an informative and entertaining commentary by the producers and, in a nice touch, a brief silent adaptation of the same story shot in Russian in 1911.

YESTERDAY
(Tartan Asia Extreme, 15, retail)

Korean cinema's rise to international prominence has been largely built on the success of a series of gritty crime dramas and bleak horror films, but this glossy action-packed sci-fi thriller shows it's just as competent in other genres too.

With visual and narrative echoes of Blade Runner, Akira and The Sixth Day, it opens with a police raid on a gang of kidnappers going horribly awry and then jumps forward a year to 2020 to find the embittered cop and his team on the trail of what they believe to be a cunning serial killer.

But when they learn that all the victims are elderly men whose common link is that they worked for now-defunct government agencies 30 years before, they probe a little deeper and stumble across a long-shelved top secret project involving abducted children, genetic manipulation and an enigmatic underground figure known only as Goliath.

Director Jeon Yun-sun doesn't spoon-feed the plot to viewers, which can make for odd moments of confusion when the police taskforce wanders into inexplicably huge gun battles, but he makes a solid job of resolving the various threads into a satisfyingly coherent and downbeat finale.

A pleasing touch is that the near-future world of a reunited Korea is so well done, largely by means of subtle upgrades of familiar technology, allowing the story and some convincing performances to propel the film instead of big showy effects.

ARMCHAIR THRILLER: THE VICTIM
(Network, 12, retail)

A gritty entry in the late 1970s series, The Victim is on an interesting spin on the old kidnapping scenario.

Tough-minded businessman Vincent (John Shrapnel) is initially thrown when his teenage daughter is kidnapped, but soon calls on all his background of ruthless corporate manoeuvring to turn the tables on her abductors, calling in his company's arsenal of cutting edge technology before abruptly deciding not to deal with the criminals at all in the hope they will have no choice but to let the girl go.

Although the acting is a little strident, director Gareth Davies knows how to keep the pace and suspense up, making for a most satisfying drama which plays its narrative cards close to its chest all the way.

Also released by Network is Armchair Thriller: Dying Day, starring Ian McKellen.

sample stuck in every four bars, and is full of electro-raspberries and cod-Aphex Twin grooves. Proof, if ever it were needed, that just because you can join up other people's records in nightclubs – he's a DJ, of course –doesn't mean you're a musician. Armand van Helden this man isn't!

FABRIC 40
Mark Farina (album, Fabric)

That's right danceheads – it's yet another release from the relentless Fabric production line, but maybe it's time the semi-legendary club changed tack and introduced a bit more variety to a series which is beginning to sound like it's stuck on repeat. That's not to say veteran disc-spinner Farina doesn't do a fine job of fusing laid-back, West Coast grooves with the high-energy kicks of Chicago house, it's just that the interminably sunny soundscape soon begins to grate and you find yourself praying for rain and reaching for your darkest dubstep discs.

SLEEPING PILLS
A Silent Film (single, Xtra Mile)

A mercifully brief example of everything that's wrong with indie music today, this is an over-produced, over-earnest would-be epic of sub-Snow Patrol whinnying and Coldplay-by-numbers reverb. In an ideal world, heads would roll in the A&R department, but no doubt we'll have to continue to endure the astonishing mediocrity of bands such as A Silent Film for as long as misguided teens who know no better continue to lap up this formulaic tripe.

THAT'S NOT MY NAME
The Ting Tings (single, Columbia)

Although annoyingly childish on the first listen, with its shouty, chanting chorus and bizarre lyrics, there's something entertainingly catchy about this which might make you give it a second chance. Wouldn't fancy a whole album of it, though.

Your stars with
to guide you through the week ahead

Aries Mar 21-Apr 20
Work and health issues have been a hot topic this year, but if a reorganisation has been shaping up, the chances are you can now start to benefit. In fact, this can also lead to an improvement in your finances. Some frivolous good fortune can come your way, but something more lasting can shape up too Aries. This can add to your sense of security. Call me now for your financial forecast.

Libra Sept 24-Oct 23
If you've been working feverishly and wondering when the spotlight would fall on you, the answer is... not quite yet. Take solace from the fact that your efforts are appreciated, they just may not be commented upon. This can also be a new beginning for your psychological health. The more informed you become Libra, the better. Call me now for your in-depth forecast.

Taurus Apr 21-May 21
Just about every facet of your world comes under more fortuitous stars. There can be revivals, new starts and new energy coursing through your situation. If you meet someone, or start a new role, this can turn out to have a very beneficial impact on your life. We are talking positives at a deep level here. Treat yourself to a make-over to celebrate. Call me now for your in-depth forecast.

Scorpio Oct 24-Nov 22
You may have come up against the bus stop, or over the chilled water tower, and these chats pleasantly pass the time of day. But there can be a truly fated quality to those you have now. If you've chosen your partners shrewdly, this can signal important conversation. Even those ties that have wobbled are not beyond redemption. Your skills as a listener can be healing. Call me now for your forecast in full.

Gemini May 22-Jun 21
Mercury moves into Gemini, where it is singularly most comfortable in the zodiac. You will need to make the most of its speedy attentions during the next ten weeks - an extended stay. However, this can also be a crucial week for your emotional health and close involvements. If you really feel comfortable in these, they can take on added resonance. Call your prediction line for more advice.

Sagittarius Nov 23-Dec 21
You may have come up against a strong headwind since last autumn and especially as far as relationships with elders, youngsters or bosses are concerned. There's not about to be a perfect panacea, but some of the restrictions and tensions that have dogged you, fade. This can also be a significant week for finally getting on top of your income and expenditure. Call now for more.

Cancer Jun 22-Jul 23
Your words have been misconstrued and there have been strains with neighbours or relatives. In the next couple of months, some of the reasons for this will slowly surface. However, this week, you can take comfort from the relationships in your world that work well. Immerse yourself in these - they can be so good for your wellbeing. Call for your love scope in full.

Capricorn Dec 22-Jan 20
If you've wanted to find your perfect niche, but others have seemed obsessed with keeping you in a more mundane role, rather than trying to get them to change, your efforts would be best served by moving your point of attack. There may be something to give up, like immediate security, but fortunately this week romance can be a very positive strand. Call for your financial forecast.

Leo Jul 24-Aug 23
If you've felt up against it cash-wise, with treats in short supply and self-discipline turned to max, at least you can see what you've achieved now and more so, with the chance to make progress at work. Indeed some stylish worldly chattels can come into your possession, perhaps because you've paid off old debts, or saved hard for something new. Call your special prediction line for more news.

Aquarius Jan 21-Feb 19
Business, property and investments have been under a bit of a cloud, and even if your own situation has stood up well to market forces, you're unlikely to have completely missed the impact. Yet your own personal scenario can now strengthen. Venus can also help in family relations, and someone within the clan can be discreetly supportive. Call your special prediction line for more advice.

Virgo Aug 24-Sept 23
Your ruler moves into its most prominent zone. In the next ten weeks there can be comings and goings professionally or new skills learnt. Some may even relocate during this time. In love, cherish a sincere heart because such a tie can become a permanent fixture. Most of all, your physical energy can revive and you can feel much more adventurous. Call me now for more news and advice.

Pisces Feb 20-Mar 20
Your personal hopes are strongly favoured by a superb trio of planets working at the heart of your world. And, you can be surer of your ground, in key relationships. There are some people who will probably always be part of your future. But if some ties have struggled, now you can look forwards rather than go over and over old ground. Call me now for your love scope in full.

As much as I loved the old Clio Renaultsport 172 and 182 models, it was immediately apparent what was wrong with them. Forget about the so-so interior materials quality or the rather odd driving position. The big problem was that not enough dentists' daughters drove them. Think about it. The hot Clios sold pretty well to testosterone-charged blokes who liked to harass Porsche Boxster drivers at trackdays, but that's a market that can rapidly become saturated. For true commercial success, you need a car with wider appeal. Your dentist's daughter or some other young middle-class female might drive a MINI Cooper S or even a Honda Civic Type-R if she's really got some attitude, but rarely would she ever drive a hot Clio. Renault is now looking to change that. The trouble with broadening appeal is that hardcore customers will dig their heels in and proclaim from the rooftops that the car has gone soft, that Renault are selling out in search of filthy lucre. One suspects the Clio Renaultsport 197 isn't going to pan out like that. For a start, Renault have resisted the urge to pointlessly chase big horsepower figures. The old Clio 182 differentiated itself in terms of value for money and moving too far from that market position wouldn't prove hugely profitable for Renault. After all, the company has to accommodate its hot Megane versions in a workable price framework. This means that although the Clio III body is bigger and heavier than the old Clio, the Clio Renaultsport 197 will still campaign against much the same rivals. In other words, expect a ding-dong sales battle between this car and Honda's latest Civic Type-R. Models like the Fiesta ST, MINI Cooper S and the SEAT Ibiza Cupra are supermini-based hot-hatches like the Clio, but they can't match its power output. Renault's stylists have done a great job with this car, endowing it with some subtle go-faster cues without turning it into a caricature. The front and rear wings are slightly wider than the standard Clio III and profiled side skirts, a deeper front spoiler and 17-inch alloy wheels all feature as standard. The extractor vents on the trailing edge of the front wheelarches help cool the air under the bonnet. The most notable styling point is the rear diffuser system. These have been used for some years now in Formula One and this system adds 40kg of downforce to the rear axle of the car. In effect, it means that the latest Clio Renaultsport has no need for a rear spoiler. It works by channelling the air flow rapidly, lowering pressure and therefore creating a suction effect underneath. The interior is light years ahead of the old Clio 182, offering plenty of space and a driving position that feels as if it's been modelled on a normal human being rather than somebody from a medical case study book. Sports seats offer decent lateral support and there are Renaultsport logos on the clocks, the door sills and the front seats. The perforated leather wheel sits nicely in the hands and the spacing of the aluminium pedals seems very good indeed for enthusiastic driving. A very purposeful touch is the way the digits on the rev counter get bigger as they approach the 7,500rpm redline. This is territory customers will be spending a lot of time in. The engine that powers the Clio isn't a whole lot different to that which saw service in the Clio 182, although Renaultsport have teased the power output up by 15bhp to achieve that hallowed '100bhp per litre' figure - the preserve of the best engine designers. The details of what has been changed are quite technical. The inlet acoustics have been uprated, the camshaft has been modified, and the combustion chamber and pistons have been modified to give a slightly higher compression ratio. Finally, Renaultsport have also improved the variable valve timing system. Below 5,000rpm, the engine has been designed to be benign in its feel, which makes it perfect for day-to-day driving. Get above 5,000rpm, however, and Renault's engineers have worked in some serious attitude, the twin exhausts giving a real sporting bark and the throttle response sharpening quite considerably. Renault quote a sprint to 60mph in just 6.9 seconds and a top speed of 134mph. The 209g/km probably won't put this Clio at the top of company car wish lists but that was never its agenda. A combined fuel consumption figure of 31.7mpg is fair for a vehicle with this sort of performance. The 1,240kg weight figure means that the Renault has a power to weight ratio of 158.8bhp per tonne, a little bit down on the old 182, but this latest model scores in terms of driveability. If it's a little less fierce in feel, much of that can be attributed to a more sophisticated suspension design, the double-axis strut front suspension offering many benefits over a conventional MacPherson strut setup, the key one being reduced torque steer. The eradication of this unwanted side-effect of putting plenty of power through the front wheels was a primary concern for the Clio's chassis engineers. Uprated anti-roll bars and a beefier torsion beam for the rear suspension also give this Renaultsport Clio 197 some serious cornering capability. The brakes have come in for some attention too with 312mm discs at the front, 300mm rotors at the rear and big Brembo callipers to get a grip on them. Renault has made a very smart move in toning the Clio down in terms of visual excess but giving it some serious potential under the skin. Those who want a wilder looking car can always turn to the aftermarket or get the Renaultsport F1 Team edition, while the rest of us can appreciate what is a very good-looking car that doesn't draw too much attention to itself. It's now a model with far wider appeal.

Royals flush out triumph

Parndon Royals 2, GPCA 0
(Harlow & District League Cup final)

PARNDON Royals came out on top as the top two teams battling for the premier division title met in the Harlow & District League Cup final, writes PAUL GROVES.

It was GPCA who made the early running at Harlow Town FC on Sunday, with efforts from Jamie Doyle and Stuart Martin going close in the opening 10 minutes.

Neither team appeared to be able to settle but on 40 minutes Stuart Knock fired into the bottom corner to give Parndon the lead.

Before the break Parndon almost doubled their lead when Chris Bullock shot just over the bar.

Parndon created the more clear-cut chances in the second half, with Ashley Cooper denied by a super save from GPCA keeper Andros Demonsthenous.

The GPCA strikers were kept quiet by excellent defensive displays from Mark Watters and Paul Goodyear.

On 68 minutes Lewis Donoghue finished well to double the lead for Parndon. GPCA still searched for openings but were unable to find that vital breakthrough. The game ended with an unsavoury incident which saw GPCA's Kevin Parker shown a red card for violent conduct and an altercation involving another GPCA player which was not seen by the referee.

Defeat for Alemite in cup final classic

Old Street 6, Alemite Ath 5
Footprint League, Bill Bruty Cup final)

RON Manager of BBC's The Fast Show fame would have been proud of this Bill Bruty Cup final cracker. There might not have been any 'rush keepers' or 'jumpers for goalposts' but what was the score? 6-5 – marvellous, isn't it?

Well perhaps not for league and cup double-winning Alemite who suffered their first defeat of the season in front of more than 200 people at Bishop's Stortford FC on Saturday.

The match looked set for extra-time – and presumably another 10 goals – until Old Street substitute Roydon Weekes snatched an 89th-minute winner.

Having led 1-0, 2-1, 4-2 and 5-4, the Bishop's Stortford-based side arguably deserved the silverware against an Alemite side that looked as though their long and successful season had finally caught up with them.

The tie got off to a sensational start with a Brazilian-style overhead kick goal from Old Street's Philip Smith.

The Harlow side were level five minutes later when Lewis Eaglestone latched onto Alemite skipper Richard Stapleton's neat through ball to slot across goal and into the bottom right corner.

Old Street stunned the premier division champions with a second goal on 15 minutes. Nick Hopkins' speculative 25-yard effort rocketed past Alemite stopper Ron Yates and into the top right corner.

Alemite refused to give up and on 20 minutes it was all square again. Stapleton headed in from Simon Hewitt's free-kick.

Hewitt then hit the bar on 26 minutes and less than 60 seconds later Street went back in front when Matt Taylor played a neat one-two with player-manager Daniel Dowsett before the former finished neatly past Yates.

Incredibly more than half an hour passed without a goal, although Gavin Cockman went close when he hit the bar from a 40-yard free-kick.

Street then grabbed a fourth close to the hour mark when Dowsett scrambled in.

But Alemite were given a lifeline when Eaglestone kicked the ball out of the hands of Street custodian Graeme Chaffe. Eaglestone passed to Cockman and he tucked into an empty net.

With 13 minutes left it was 4-4 when Cockman scored from a wonderful individual effort from 20 yards out on the right.

Dan Ward slotted past Yates on 80 minutes for 5-4, but Alemite came back again a few minutes later and Stapleton stabbed home after Chaffe could only parry Eaglestone's effort.

Then just as extra-time loomed, Weekes – who came on early in the second half – showed tremendous strength to shake off an Alemite defender and fire home the 11th goal of an amazing night.

Alemite joint boss Peter Lucia added: "Every time we came back, we let them in again. We had not lost a game all season. The only one was in this cup final. Credit to them, we didn't deserve it in the end."

ALEMITE ATH: Yates, Childs (Davis 61), Kiff, Munn, Mays (Warren), Bethel, Hewett, Cockman, Stapleton, Eaglestone, Dance. Subs not used: Smith, Bean.

Kenny Davis almost swept the board at the club's annual presentation night.

Other winners were Ryan Kirby (President's Cup) and Golden Boot (James Bunn).

Epping are safe

EPHING lost 3-2 at home to Benfleet in their penultimate premier division match in the Essex Olympian Football League.

However, the side are safe from relegation due to results elsewhere.

Bishop's Stortford Swifts' defeat to White Ensign ultimately meant they join Shell Club Corringham in division one next season.

Epping's scorers were Cheng Mparupsa and Chris Muir.

In division one, champions Potter Street drew 2-2 at Herongate Athletic.

Haul of medals in athletics opener

A NEAR full-strength Harlow Athletic Club team came home with a haul of first places in their opening Southern Men's League match at Walthamstow on Saturday.

Only a points loss due to the absence of Harlow athletes in the 1,500m and steeple-chase events, prevented the team from winning the match overall.

Key athletes for Harlow were Glen Paxman, Carl Paxman, Scott Daniel and Derek Glover.

Glen won the pole vault, B string long jump (5.48m), A String 100m (11.7s), 200m (23.6s), 400m (58.5s), 4x100m (47.0s) and helped win the 4x400m (3:40.1).

Twin brother Carl came first in the A string long jump (5.97m) and B string 400m (58.6s) and was part of the winning 4x100m and 4x400m relay teams.

New members Julian Tamplin and John Evans came second in the 800m A string (2:14.6) and B string (2:19.5) respectively.

Evans then competed in the 5km race where he again came second (19:18.4).

Injured David Bauer was limited to hammer and took first in the A string (32.74m).

Derek Glover was first in the B string hammer (29.82m). He also won the A string discus (29.29m), a throw matched by B string Scott Daniel.

Daniel also came second in the A string shot put (10.06m).

Lloyd Evans took first in the A 400m hurdles (66.0s) and Daniel was 2nd in the B event (70.2s).

Daniel also won the high jump (1.70m) and javelin (43.08m) and was part of the 4x400m relay team.

A depleted Harlow AC youth team finished 7th in their opening Eastern Young Athletes League match at Basildon.

Harlow's best scoring girl was Polly Woods (U-17) who came first in both the 300m (44.4s) and triple jump (10.66m). She was 2nd in the long jump (4.66m) where she improved her personal best (PB) by 3cm.

Sian Donovan (U-15) improved her best in the 100m (13.2s) where she took first. She was 5th in the shot (6.92m).

Marleen Avontuur (U-13) came 3rd in the 800m (2:45.8), improving her performance by nine seconds. She was 2nd in the discus (14.85m).

Jamie Gallagher (U-17) set a PB of 2:12.8 in the 800m and Julian Tamplin (U-17) matched his PB in the 1,500m (4:44.9). Also competing were:- Paige Harmsworth (U-13) 100m (17.4s), shot (4.55m); Isobel Moss (U-13) 800m (3:03.7), discus (9.72m), long jump (3.08m); Nancy Tamplin (U-13) 100m (18.1s); Ruth Bastow (U-15) 100m (15.0s), 200m (30.8s), discus (9.02m); R. Parker (U-15) 200m (36.4s); Mitchel Ramm (U-15), shot (5.31m); Hayley Parker (U-13) 100m (17.6s), 200m (37.9s).

Aidan is an Essex county champion

AIDAN Lee was crowned Essex county champion for the U-17 men's 200m at Thurrock on Sunday.

Mark Hall Sports College student Aidan ran 22.4 seconds, with training partner Sam Watts (Sawbridgeworth) a close 2nd in 22.51s.

These times place Aidan and Sam 2nd and 3rd in the UK rankings for 200m (U-17).

Harlow's Tom Larkin (U-17) was 6th in 23.4s after returning 23.26s – a new personal best (PB) in his semi-final.

At the same meeting, Sophie Fuhr (14) stayed in touch with UK number 1 Jessica Judd for two laps of her U-15 girls 1,500m. She ran a new PB of 5 mins, 15 secs in placing 11th overall out of 28 starters.

At Woodford the day before in the Southern premier division of the National Young Athletes League, Harlow's Cherice McKay won the U-17 shot put with 8.77m. She was 3rd in the discus with 25.11m (PB) and 3rd in the hammer with 19.03m.

Harlow's Tom Richards won the B string javelin with 44.16m.

Dan Yaxley enjoyed a big improvement of 10 mins, 6 secs for 3rd in his 3,000m race.

Completing the Harlow contingent was Sophie Fuhr, who ran a promising 28.6s 200m event, placing 4th.

Bowls club's 100!

MP Bill Rammell played the first wood as Harlow Bowls Club celebrated 100 years.

The Elderfield club played Tye Green Outdoor Bowling Club to celebrate the memorable occasion.

In its centenary season Harlow will also play prestigious teams including the Royal Household, Chelsea Pensioners, Essex county and the Bowls England women's team.

MILESTONE: MP Bill Rammell, centre, with players and officials at Harlow Bowls Club

(D3QYRLQX-03)

Even today the club has 60 active members.

George Mole, vice-captain of the Harlow club, said: "We are proud that this is our centenary season and so many people still enjoy the sport so much."

Mr Rammell added: "I'm delighted to celebrate 100 years of bowls in Harlow by opening the first game of the centenary season.

"It is also fantastic to see the club go from strength to strength.

"I would encourage anyone wishing to take bowls up as a sport to do so. It's a great social activity and a good way to keep fit."

The 'ex' factor

Older players key if Harlow are to mount promotion bid

JAMES Butler says his more experienced players MUST perform if Harlow are to mount a promotion bid in division two of the Shepherd Neame Essex League this season.

The Harlow skipper, who will miss the opening fortnight starting with Saturday's home match against Fives & Heronians following a hernia operation, says players like himself and former skipper Simon Baulcomb must play to the best of their abilities if Harlow are to succeed.

The Marigolds side, who lost heavily against premier division Hainault & Clayhall in the Cockspur Cup on Sunday, will have a good blend of youth and experience this term.

Butler's brother Nick, opener Nilesh Odedra and Waqas Ahter all have important roles to play but Butler stressed: "Me and Simon [Baulcomb] must contribute well if we are to push for promotion."

Hainault & Clayhall 237, Harlow 156

(Cockspur Cup, 1st rnd)

Butler is particularly excited at the prospect of 16-year-old wicket-keeper Nino Calvino.

The youngster looks a real talent with bat and gloves. He has not conceded a bye for 135 overs.

"He is top drawer," said Butler.

The captain is also hoping for good things from 19-year-old New Zealander Tom Worthington, the club's overseas player this season.

The Wellington-born bowler replaces another Kiwi, Andrew Corliss.

Young bowler Luke Heskett should also continue the progress he made last season.

Butler was not too disappointed at Harlow's expected defeat to a Hainault side which fielded virtually their first team XI.

Harlow only had three first team regulars in action.

Nicky Baxter (3-28) and Heskett (1-38) bowled well as Hainault put on 237, a total which Butler felt was at least 40 runs too many for the hosts to contend with.

In response, Odedra (37) and Ahter (55) enjoyed a good third-wicket partnership after the early departures of Nick Butler and Baxter.

Big-hitter Baxter was moved up the order as a ploy to get some early runs on the board and gain some momentum but this plan imploded when he went for a duck.

Trialist Matt Boland (15) was the only other player to reach double figures as Harlow were shot out for 156.

"They [Hainault] have got some first class bowlers. It was a first class attack," said Butler. "I was gutted I couldn't play. You don't often get a chance to play against that sort of quality of side."

Show's a knock-out!

BOXING fans were treated to an evening of top-quality pugilism as Harlow ABC staged its annual boxing show at the Abercrombie Centre on Saturday. With a total of 16 bouts in the programme, three of which were the finals of the Eastern Counties Junior ABAs, it was a busy evening.

Three Harlow ABC boxers were also in action.

Twelve-year-old debutant Albert Smith was overwhelmed by the heavier and superior powers of George Bacon (Hoddesdon ABC). The referee stopped the fight in the second round. Welterweight Barney O'Connor (29) took only 50 seconds to dispose of his opponent Dan McGill (Colchester ABC). A thudding right hand cross shook McGill and put an end to that bout.

Middleweight Paul Marshall (28) had to work hard against Mo Khan (Colchester ABC), who enjoyed a 4ins height advantage over the Harlow boxer.

After three rounds, the judges awarded a majority win to Khan.

Eastern Counties finals – U-54kgs, K. Steff (Bury Boys) lost to Alfred Smith (New Astley, Suffolk) on points; U-60kgs, Loui Walker (Canvey) bt Caine Brunning (Kingfisher) on points; U-70kgs, Cris Goddard (Canvey) lost to Tyler Goodjohn (Haddenham ABC) on points.

Brave Bowen's back

GUTSY speedway star Luke Bowen, right, rode through the pain barrier to help steer his Rye House Rockets side to a comfortable 52-40 Premier League victory over Workington at Hoddesdon on Monday.

The Harlow-born rider may have only scored four points from his four outings – but he displayed nerves of steel to set foot on the track where just a few weeks earlier he had been involved in a horrific crash.

Bowen suffered a serious shoulder injury, but after extensive physiotherapy – and heavy strapping – the former Mark Hall School pupil took his place in the Rockets line-up.

The Rockets

gained revenge for the narrow 46-44 defeat at Derwent Park two days earlier and the final score certainly belied the intensity of the racing.

In Heat 10, Bowen chipped in with vital points for third place.

The Hoddesdon team are next in action on Saturday when they host Edinburgh in the Premier League.

Rye House scorers: C. Neath 4 (from four rides); L. Bowen 4 (4); T Woffinden 13 (5); S. Ekberg 12+1 (5); D. Halsey 3+2 (4); R. Mear 16+3 (7).

Relegation lifeline for Potter Street

POTTER Street reserves climbed off the bottom of the Footprint Bishop's Stortford, Stansted & District Football League premier division table with a vital 2-1 victory at Hatfield Heath.

Dean Noble and Luke Gumble struck for the visitors.

On Saturday, second-placed North Weald wrapped up the runner-up spot with a 6-2 defeat of Pelly House. Scorers were Frank Major (3), James Brown (2) and Matt Clark.

Potter Street A beat Avondale Rangers 6-1. On target for the hosts were Neill Jackson, Kirk Elliott, Kenny Evans and Tommy Mercer (3). Other results:- div one: Thorley Park 2, Dunmow Rhodes 1; Hatfield Heath res 5, Albury 2; Sheering res 3, Langley Rangers 0; Thorley Park v Hatfield Heath res (Hatfield unable to field side).

Promoted side off to great start

HARLOW Town got their Lords International Herts & Essex Cricket League season off to a flyer with a 102-run victory over Elsenham.

Town batted first and a fourth-wicket stand of 91 between Pat Yates (58) and Ashley Alderson (52) turned the game the home side's way, helping to set a formidable total of 191-9.

The visitors' reply never really got going.

The main architect of their downfall was Paul Calver (5-22) as Elsenham were dismissed for 89.

In the same division, Potter Street's match at Willingale was cancelled due to a waterlogged pitch.

● SAWBRIDGE-WORTH suffered a heavy defeat at Woodford Wells in the first round of the Cockspur Cup.

The hosts put on 202-9 and then dispatched Sawbo for a woeful 82.

CC Whites duo seal KO win

ALEX Hogg and Mick Rout (CC Whites) won the Harlow Premier Darts League Pairs Knockout final.

The duo came back from 1-0 down against Jeff Etherington and Billy Nemes (Servo Hawks) to win 3-1.

Some 102 players started the competition last Friday at Harlow's GPCA.

Hogg and Rout beat Mal Copas and John Wildish (White Admiral) in the semi-final.

Etherington and Nemes defeated Paul Banks and Tracy Barnett (Young Pretenders) in the last four.

Luck's in

JAMIE Luck was one of three Harlow Running Club members competing at the Ashdon 10.68km cross country race at the weekend.

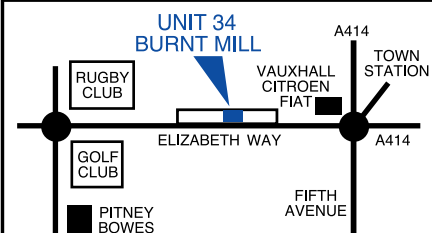

He finished in 48mins flat, while club-mates Ron Luck and Jon Steadman ran 1:01.34 and 49.31 respectively.

Calm down, dads

FOOTBALL in the community supremo Bill Songhurst has urged touchline parents to 'calm down' or be banned from watching their kids play football in Harlow.

Songhurst, pictured left, who last month stepped down as assistant manager at Harlow Town FC but is still involved with the academy set-up, claims only recently a parent was arrested after violence hit a match in a town neighbouring Harlow.

And in Plymouth, Devon, a match was abandoned when fathers brawled on the touchline of an English Schools tournament semi-final.

Songhurst, a former coach and physio at Birmingham City, Nottingham Forest and Manchester City, says that some over-hyped parents are stressing out their children by shouting abuse from the touchline.

Songhurst, who runs free soccer coaching sessions for kids out of the Ladyscot community centre in Harlow, said: "It's all about winning. The parents want to see their kids win every week. They are put under pressure – but they are children!"

"They are losing their childhood. I recently saw a coach run across a pitch and hit one of the players. We have got people that are abusing young children from the side of the pitch," he said.

Songhurst has been involved in football for more than 30 years, not only working at a host of League clubs in England but also in America, where he coached children with obesity problems.

Football has been in the headlines for the wrong reasons recently with the tackle on Arsenal star Eduardo by Birmingham City's Martin Taylor, which left the Croatian with a terrifying injury.

Songhurst is also concerned at this aspect of the game. "Parents shout 'get in there'. People want kids to emulate them. But you can win the ball without being physically challenging."

Songhurst hopes clubs in Harlow will follow the lead of professional clubs where parents are banned completely from matches. "At a pro club you just drop your kids off and go," he said.

He wants parents to sign a code of conduct and agree to a high standard of behaviour.

"We want parents to be involved. We want to educate the children but also the parents into the enjoyment of sport," he added.

Songhurst would like to see a complete revamp of children's football in this country. The country's obsession with winning has created a philosophy where children are missing out on football as parent coaches pick their strongest side.

"No one should be a substitute for two weeks running," said Songhurst. "Everybody should get an equal amount of time on the pitch. And positions should be rotated every week up to 14 years of age."

SECOND BEST: Harlow with their trophy for runner-up at the Middlesex Sevens Bowl competition

Super Rams near sevens heaven

FRANCIS Brown will head off to India to make his 10th appearance for his country in good heart having helped Harlow to the runner-up spot in a sevens tournament in Middlesex.

Brown coached the Rams team and played a key part as he scored eight tries and seven conversions and put in a series of brilliant performances.

Harlow only had a squad of nine players but a herculean effort enabled them to reach the final where they were finally beaten 26-7 by a much bigger Ruislip IIs side.

Dan Hockley scored Harlow's only try in the final. Brown converted.

The side was put together by Alan Maddocks, a former first team manager at Rams Gorse. Skipper was Josh Bohl in his last game in a Harlow shirt before returning to Australia.

The competition consisted of eight pools with four teams in each pool. Harlow lost 33-7 to Ruislip I with Hockley again scoring the sole try.

There was better fortune in the second game Old Merchant Taylors, which Harlow won 36-12 thanks to some outstanding runs from Hockley, Bohl and bullish defence from Paul Eynon. Second-half scores from Neil Fitzpatrick, Sean Banks, Hockley, Bohl and Eynon completed the rout.

The third game was a lot tighter with a loss of 14-21 against Haringay Rhinos. Harlow try scorers were Eynon and Bohl.

This meant Harlow progressed into the Bowl competition.

The Rams played some of their best rugby in the quarter-final against Enfield Ignatians.

There were some excellent tries from Brown, with great support from all of the squad.

Converted tries from Brown, Bohl and Charlie Woodington meant that, despite a second-half sin-binning, Harlow won through 42-29.

Brown went on to get a try hat-trick, while Bohl, Banks and Woodington were also on target.

A convincing performance against Barclay Eagles ensured Harlow progressed to the Bowl final after a 35-14 semi-final win.

Scorers were Brown (4) and Eynon.

However, the final proved a step too far for this plucky Harlow team.

HARLOW: Brown, Eynon, Bohl, Banks, McFerran, Fitzpatrick, Woodington, Hockley, Hitchcock.
